

As defined in the AAD and AADA bylaws...

“The Board of Directors shall by majority vote establish a body of administrative regulations to govern the organization and operation of important aspects of the affairs of the Academy (or Association). Such administrative regulations shall cover such matters as are specifically required by these bylaws, including the organization and operation of the committee, council and commission structure of the Academy (or Association), procedures for hearings on denials of membership, procedures for the nomination and election of officers and directors, the duties and authority of the Executive Director, the fiscal year of the Academy (or Association), and such other important administrative matters as the Board of Directors shall deem appropriate. “
